

Futurist Library

FUTURIST LIBRARY

Future City is a toolkit to help us think about how to work towards a future city. Artists, theorists, academics, writers, geographers and architects, as well as participants in Future City, were invited by the curators to select material that a library for the future should have. Responding to the question: what should we read in order to think most imaginatively for the future? The library includes fiction and non-fiction books, journals and films as well as other relevant specialist material.

Bahbak Hashemi-Nezhad and Lola Halifa-Legrand

Lola Halifa Legrand: French-born Lola Halifa Legrand is a designer who often works in collaboration with artists, curators and designers. Since graduating from The Royal College of Art, London, in 2011, she has worked with organisations such as Electra, Manystuff, Department 21 and The National Portrait Gallery, and has self-published widely.

Bahbak Hashemi-Nezhad is a London-based designer and artist who, through the use of collaborative research, engages with the role and social function of design within domestic and urban public spaces. In 2008 he established a multi-disciplinary studio producing work ranging from interior and public spaces to recipes, photography, games, public interventions and product design. Recent projects and exhibitions include Penfold's Cupboard, Residents' Restaurant, The Showroom (2012), Auber-gineNW8 (London Festival of Architecture), Room 3 (Lloyd Hotel, Amsterdam), Auto-Assemble-Food (Architecture Association, London) and Parallax (Tokyo Wonder Site).
